

Choe's Story

Chloe was diagnosed on Christmas Eve of 2009 with anaplastic ependymoma (an aggressive brain cancer). In the first 6 months she had 3 brain surgeries and 33 rounds of radiation, along with several different chemos. She had nearly 3 years of "remission", then in early 2013 we found out it came back to another area. She did multiple trials, including one at St. Jude. She's had 2 more surgeries and radiation, as well as several radio surgeries. Currently, she is on a breast cancer drug she gets through a special port in her brain. She's been through more than anyone should, but even through the fight she's maintained a great attitude and spirit. She's funny, caring, sweet and knows way too much! She likes being with friends and being girly. She loves her brother (Bubby), and she swims like a fish. I really think she will enjoy the rodeo. She loves animals, and any excuse she can have to wear boots and a dress
